Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 29, 49, 52, 53, 57-64 and 78-79 (renumbered 1-14) are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The cited prior art taken alone or in combination does not fairly teaches managing product using configuration inheritance and re-visioning. Specially, claims 29, 49, 78 and 78 are directed to generating a configuration object for managing product, generating derived configuration object with inheritance chain, processing configuration inheritance chain using inheritance merge process to obtain effective configuration for product and detecting collision name, merges the configuration object and also resolving collision between nodes for managing certain behavior and or desired functional state for software of management product. The cited art teaches database mapping of XML objects into a relational database and system creates a file object defining the content object that contains a list or outline of the container and non-container entities selected, their identifiers, order and structure. But silent on generating a configuration object for managing product, generating derived configuration object with inheritance chain, processing configuration inheritance chain using inheritance merge process to obtain effective configuration for product and detecting collision name, merges the configuration object and also resolving collision between nodes for managing certain behavior and or desired functional state for software of management product. Therefore, the claimed invention improves on technique or structure for maintaining configuration data for the wide variety of products, devices and groupings of products and devices found in the complex enterprise networks that exist today.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
